I. Labour Relations Board

The Labour Relations Board came into existence in 1944 (2nd Sess.) c. 69. Although the Act has often been amended, most recently in 2000, the basic concept of the Board has not changed. The Board is an independent, quasi-judicial tribunal charged with the responsibility of adjudicating disputes that arise under The Trade Union Act. It does this principally through public hearings and written decisions.

The Board's decisions are final and binding upon the parties. There is no appeal, and review by the courts is strictly limited.

The Act presently provides for a board composed of a chairperson and two vice-chairpersons and an unspecified number of members. All members of the Board, including the chairperson and vice-chairpersons, are appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The chairperson and vice-chairpersons are full-time members of the Board. The remaining members are appointed and paid on a per diem basis when their services are required.

The Board is a representational Board. This means that all members of the Board, with the exception of the chairperson and vice-chairpersons, are representatives of employees or employers. The chairperson and vice-chairpersons are neutral and are lawyers. The Board reports to the Minister of Labour for the Province of Saskatchewan. The Minister is obligated by The Trade Union Act to provide the Board with the requisite staff and facilities. The Board operates independently from the government, its departments and agencies.

The Board's offices and staff are located at 1600 - 1920 Broad Street, Regina. The Board also maintains a hearing room in Saskatoon. The staff of the Board is composed of the Board Registrar/ Legal Counsel, Investigating Officer, Executive Assistant to the Chairperson and three clerical positions. II. The Trade Union Act

In Canada, legislative jurisdiction over industrial relations has, since a ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1925, fallen largely under provincial jurisdiction. Fortunately, the potential this presented for legal fragmentation was offset by varying combinations of interprovincial management and union structures, common history and common day-to-day economic and political conditions. The result is a remarkable commonality of core principles and procedures in all 11 Canadian jurisdictions.

The main features of Saskatchewan's Trade Union Act, like its counterparts in all other Canadian jurisdictions, may be summarized as follows:

- traditional courts are replaced by a specialized, quasi-judicial tribunal with exclusive and binding jurisdiction over the matters assigned to it by The Trade Union Act;
 - common law of conspiracy and restraint of trade is abolished insofar as it applies to employees who bargain collectively;
 - the majority of employees determine for all employees in a group whether they will bargain collectively and, if so, through which union;
 - an employer is required to recognize the union chosen by the majority of its employees as their exclusive representative for the purpose of bargaining collectively;
 - the employer and the union are required to bargain in good faith with a view to concluding a collective bargaining agreement;
 - a number of unfair labour practices are created to protect employees and unions from any attempt by the employer to interfere with their rights;
 - strike and lock-out activity is regulated, but not prohibited;
- specific issues, such as union security, technological change, conciliation, voting procedures and religious exclusions, are addressed; and,
 - remedial and enforcement procedures are included in the statute.

In short, the Act provides the legal framework for collective bargaining, along with a procedure for adjudicating disputes and enforcing rights and obligations. The Trade Union Act, like its counterparts in all other Canadian jurisdictions, does not attempt to prohibit economic conflict between employees and employers, but only to control it. It does not attempt to regulate the outcome of collective bargaining, but merely the process to be followed.

The function of the Labour Relations Board within this statutory framework is to identify the parties which will participate in collective bargaining and to monitor the procedural aspects of the bargaining process. Under The Trade Union Act, the Board is not required to follow all of the formal rules of procedure that have been developed in courts of law.

The Board attempts to conduct its hearings in a way that will make them accessible to representatives of the parties who have no legal training, and that will allow the Board to identify the issues that are genuinely in dispute.

III. The Construction Industry Labour Relations Act, 1992

Passed in 1992 and amended in 2000, The Construction Industry Labour Relations Act, 1992, S.S. 1992, c. C-29.11, provides for a system of collective bargaining in the building trades between organizations representing groups of contractors and the construction unions. The supervision of this statutory system is conferred on the Board under the legislation.

IV. The Health Labour Relations Reorganization Act

Passed in 1996, The Health Labour Relations Reorganization Act, S.S. 1996, c. H-0.03, appointed a commissioner to examine the organization of labour relations between health sector employers and employees in the province. The Dorsey Commission report was submitted, and The Health Labour Relations Reorganization (Commissioner) Regulations, R.R.S., c. H-0.03, Reg. 1 came into force in January, 1997.

The Act confers upon the Board the power to make orders for the purpose of carrying out the intent of the legislation and respecting any matter arising out of the reorganization of labour relations in the health care sector not addressed in the Regulations.

V. Budget Summary

The total budget of the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2003 was $832,000. The actual sum expended by the Board during the fiscal year was $830,587. The Board has, over time, displayed an ability to manage its resources efficiently. It should be noted, however, that it is unable to control or predict the nature or number of applications put before it and, as a result, the relationship of expenditure to budgetary allocation cannot be guaranteed.

VI. Summary of Board Activity for 2002-2003

Between April 1, 2002, and March 31, 2003, the Labour Relations Board held 12 monthly meetings lasting a total of 144 days. A total of 260 applications were received and a total of 265 were disposed of by the Board during the year. Tables 2 and 3 show these applications by type of application and disposition. The five-year trend is shown by disposition in Tables 3 and 4 and by type in Tables 5 and 6.

During 2002-2003, 70 certification orders covering 1167 employees were issued by the Board and nine certification orders affecting 423 employees were rescinded.

It is not possible in this report to convey a complete picture of the nature and range of applications brought before the Board during the year. It may be helpful, however, to mention briefly some of the issues that illustrate the many types of questions that arise from applications before the Board.

During the reporting period, the Board considered several applications relating to disputes between employees and certified bargaining agents alleging violation of the duty of fair representation provided in s. 25.1 of The Trade Union Act or denial of the principles of natural justice provided in s. 36.1. In Roger Johnston v. Service Employees' International Union, Local 333, [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 7, the Board reviewed the requirements of the duty with respect to its application to collective bargaining. The Board deferred to the jurisdiction of the Human Rights Commission with respect to the accommodation issues of such a complaint in Barbara Metz v. Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union, [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 28. In Dr. Lucinda Vandervoort v. University of Saskatchewan Faculty Association, et al. (2003), LRB File Nos. 102-95 & 047-99 (not yet reported), the Board confirmed that a union may refuse to pursue a grievance if the position required to be advanced is at variance with its preferred interpretation of the collective agreement, and outlined the extent of a union's authority to negotiate settlement of a grievance against the wishes of the grievor. The latter point was also the subject of the decision in Randy Gibson v. Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union of Canada, Local 650, [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 574.

In Saskatchewan Joint Board, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union v. Saskatchewan Gaming Corporation – Casino Moose Jaw and Public Service Alliance of Canada, [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 601, the Board ordered a vote where one union filed an application for certification with evidence of majority support of employees and a second union filed a similar application three days later with evidence of support of more than 25%, but less than 50% of the employees. The Board confirmed the decision on reconsideration at [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 641.

In Grain Services Union (ILWU – Canada) v. Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, et al., [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 52, the Board reviewed the limited circumstances in which parties are required to engage in collective bargaining during the term of a collective agreement.

The Board reviewed and confirmed the principles applicable to the composition of bargaining units in a multiple bargaining unit setting including a "middle-management" bargaining unit in Saskatoon Professional Fire Fighters Union v. Saskatoon Civic Middle Management Association, et al., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 213, and City of Saskatoon v. Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 47, et al., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 471 and [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 542.

In Earl Hill v. Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union, [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 23, the Board reviewed the criteria applicable to applications for an interim order pursuant to s. 5.3 of The Trade Union Act. A review of these principles was also made in a case in the health services sector in relation to an application to prohibit strike action in Saskatchewan Association of Health Organizations v. Health Sciences Association of Saskatchewan, [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 378.

The Board reviewed the principles applicable to disclosure of information at the negotiating table during collective bargaining in Saskatchewan Joint Board, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union v. Temple Gardens Mineral Spa Inc., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 235

In Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 1975, v. Country Classic Fashions Ltd., [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 103, the Board confirmed that, pursuant to s. 37 of The Trade Union Act, at the time of the sale of a business, proceedings before the Board, as well as orders already in place, attach to the business, and the successor employer is bound by a collective agreement subsequently imposed as a result of an application for assistance in achieving a first contract pending before the Board at the time of the sale.

During the reporting period, the Board made several procedural rulings. In International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 529 v. Pyramid Electric Corporation, [2003] Sask. L.R.B.R. 115, the Board confirmed that applications and replies filed with the Board in the form of a statutory declaration are evidence before the Board and the deponents of such documents are subject to cross-examination.

In PCL Industrial Constructors Ltd. v. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1985, et al., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. c-3, the Saskatchewan Court of Queen's Bench confirmed that there was no denial of natural justice in the Board determining without an oral hearing an application to review a decision by the Executive Officer of the Board as to the requirement to provide particulars. In Saskatchewan Indian Gaming Authority Inc. v. National Automobile, Aerospace, Transportation and General Workers Union of Canada (CAW – Canada), [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. c-25, the Court also confirmed, inter alia, the discretion of the Board to appoint a Board agent in a first contract application to assist the parties and to report to the Board with recommendations respecting issues where the parties are not able to agree, and to disallow the cross-examination of the Board agent at the hearing of the application.

In Industrial Wood and Allied Workers Canada, Local 1-184 v. Cabtech Manufacturing Inc., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 271, the Board described circumstances in which it may declare that an unfair labour practice was committed even though it has been remedied by the party in breach by the time of the hearing of the application.

In International Union of Operating Engineers Hoisting and Portable and Stationary, Local 870 v. Rural Municipality of Meota No. 468, [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 285, the Board held that the withdrawal of an application for certification by a union and the subsequent filing of a new application shortly thereafter is not an abuse of the Board's process, and that an applicant may withdraw an application at any time prior to final determination by the Board.

In the construction sector, the Board clarified the composition of bargaining units with respect to compulsory apprenticeship trades in International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 2038 v. Prairie Control Services Ltd., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 413, and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 2038 v. Tesco Electric Ltd., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 512. In the latter case, the Board also confirmed the appropriateness of organization by craft for employees engaged in maintenance activities in the construction industry under The Construction Industry Labour Relations Act, 1992.

The principles governing the reconsideration by the Board of a decision of the Board were reviewed in United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1985, et al. v. Graham Construction and Engineering Ltd., et al., [2002] Sask. L.R.B.R. 295.

In conjunction with its publisher, the Saskatchewan Legal Education Society Inc. (SKLESI), the Board continued the publication of its Reasons for Decision and any subsequent court decisions during the reporting year in The Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board Reports (cited as Sask. L.R.B.R.). The Board wishes to thank SKLESI, its Executive Director and staff for their considerable effort and continued cooperation in the publication of the Reports. Reports of recent Board decisions are available on the Board's website at www.sasklabourrelationsboard.com. The Board's entire reasons for decision are also available on Quicklaw.
