Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board

I. Labour Relations Board

The Labour Relations Board came into existence in 1944 with passage of The Trade Union Act, S.S. 1944 (2nd Sess.) c. 69. Although the Act has often been amended, most recently in 2005, the basic concept of the Board has not changed. The Board is an independent, quasi-judicial tribunal charged with the responsibility of adjudicating disputes that arise under The Trade Union Act. It does this principally through public hearings and written decisions.

The Board's decisions are final and binding upon the parties. There is no appeal, and review by the courts is strictly limited.

The Act presently provides for a board composed of a chairperson and two vice-chairpersons and an unspecified number of members. All members of the Board, including the chairperson and vice-chairpersons, are appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The chairperson and vice-chairpersons are full-time members of the Board. The remaining members are appointed and paid on a per diem basis when their services are required.

The Board is a representational Board. This means that all members of the Board, with the exception of the chairperson and vice-chairpersons, are representatives of employees or employers. The chairperson and vice-chairpersons are neutral and are lawyers. The Board reports to the Minister of Labour for the Province of Saskatchewan. The Minister is obligated by The Trade Union Act to provide the Board with the requisite staff and facilities.

The Board operates independently from the government, its departments and agencies. The chairperson, vice-chairpersons and all members of the Board are required by the Act to take an oath of impartiality in the performance of their office.

The Board's offices and staff are located at 1600 - 1920 Broad Street, Regina. The Board also maintains a hearing room in Saskatoon. The staff of the Board is composed of the Board Registrar/Legal Counsel, Investigating Officer, Executive Assistant to the Chairperson and three clerical positions. The chairperson or one of the vice-chairpersons is appointed to act as Executive Officer of the Board. An Organizational Chart of the Labour Relations Board is contained in Table 1.

II. The Trade Union Act

In Canada, legislative jurisdiction over industrial relations has, since a ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1925, fallen largely under provincial jurisdiction. Fortunately, the potential this presented for legal fragmentation was offset by varying combinations of interprovincial management and union structures, common history and common day-to-day economic and political conditions. The result is a remarkable commonality of core principles and procedures in all 11 Canadian jurisdictions.

The main features of Saskatchewan's Trade Union Act, like its counterparts in all other Canadian jurisdictions, may be summarized as follows:

- traditional courts are replaced by a specialized, quasi-judicial tribunal with exclusive and binding jurisdiction over the matters assigned to it by The Trade Union Act;
- common law of conspiracy and restraint of trade is abolished insofar as it applies to employees who bargain collectively;
- the majority of employees determine for all employees in a group whether they will bargain collectively and, if so, through which union;
- an employer is required to recognize the union chosen by the majority of its employees as their exclusive representative for the purpose of bargaining collectively;
- the employer and the union are required to bargain in good faith with a view to concluding a collective bargaining agreement;

- a number of unfair labour practices are created to protect employees and unions from any attempt by the employer to interfere with their rights;
- strike and lock-out activity is regulated, but not prohibited;
- specific issues, such as union security, technological change, conciliation, voting procedures and religious exclusions are addressed; and
- remedial and enforcement procedures are included in the statute.

In short, the Act provides the legal framework for collective bargaining, along with a procedure for adjudicating disputes and enforcing rights and obligations. The Trade Union Act, like its counterparts in all other Canadian jurisdictions, does not attempt to prohibit economic conflict between employees and employers, but only to control it. It does not attempt to regulate the outcome of collective bargaining, but merely the process to be followed.

The function of the Labour Relations Board within this statutory framework is to identify the parties which will participate in collective bargaining, and to monitor the procedural aspects of the bargaining process. Under The Trade Union Act, the Board is not required to follow all of the formal rules of procedure that have been developed in courts of law.

The Board attempts to conduct its hearings in a way that will make them accessible to representatives of the parties who have no legal training, and which will allow the Board to identify the issues which are genuinely in dispute.

III. The Construction Industry Labour Relations Act, 1992

Passed in 1992 and amended in 2000, The Construction Industry Labour Relations Act, 1992, S.S. 1992, c. C-29.11, provides for a system of collective bargaining in the building trades between organizations representing groups of contractors and the construction unions. The supervision of this statutory system is conferred on the Board under the legislation.

IV. The Health Labour Relations Reorganization Act

Passed in 1996, The Health Labour Relations Reorganization Act, S.S. 1996, c. H-0.03, appointed a commissioner to examine the organization of labour relations between health sector employers and employees in the Province. The Dorsey Commission report was submitted, and The Health Labour Relations Reorganization (Commissioner) Regulations, R.R.S., c. H-0.03, Reg. 1 came into force, in January, 1997.

The legislation confers upon the Board the power to make orders for the purpose of carrying out the intent of the legislation and respecting any matter arising out of the reorganization of labour relations in the health care sector not addressed in the Regulations.

V. Budget Summary

The total budget of the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2007 was $823,000. The actual sum expended by the Board during the fiscal year was $666,000. The Board has, over time, displayed an ability to manage its resources efficiently. It should be noted, however, that it is unable to control or predict the nature or number of applications put before it, and as a result, the relationship of expenditure to budgetary allocation cannot be guaranteed.

VI. Summary of Board Activity for 2006-2007

Between April 1, 2006, and March 31, 2007, the Labour Relations Board held 12 monthly meetings lasting a total of 94 days. A total of 180 applications were received and a total of 201 were disposed of by the Board during the year. Tables 2 and 3 show these applications by type of application and disposition. The five-year trend is shown by disposition in Tables 3 and 4 and by type in Tables 5 and 6.

During 2006-2007, 36 certification orders covering 989 employees were issued by the Board and 11 certification orders affecting 220 employees were rescinded.

It is not possible in this report to convey a complete picture of the nature and range of applications brought before the Board during the year. It may be helpful, however, to mention briefly some of the issues that illustrate the many types of questions that arise from applications before the Board.

During the reporting period the Board heard and determined two cases where it was asked to exercise its discretionary power to summarily dismiss an application pursuant to s. 18(o) of The Trade Union Act, which was among the legislative amendments to the Board's powers made in 2005. In Soles v. Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 4777 and Prince Albert and Parkland Health Region, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 413, LRB File No. 085-06, the Board summarily dismissed the application that the union violated its duty of fair representation where it did not disclose an arguable case. In addition, the Board observed that lack of evidence is not a ground to be considered on an application for summary dismissal because to do so would infer a requirement that an applicant produce evidence at the pleadings stage of proceedings. In Metz v. Saskatchewan Government and General

Employees' Union, [2000] Sask. L.R.B.R. 9, LRB File Nos. 126-06 and 127-06, the Board described the procedure used to determine whether the Board will consider summary dismissal where on its face the application admits of the possibility that the Board may refuse to hear it for want of jurisdiction, and that the Board may on its own motion raise the issue even where the parties have not done so. In that decision the Board also made a comprehensive review of the jurisprudence concerning the doctrine of res judicata and issue estoppel as it applies to the jurisdiction of the Board and circumstances when the Board may decline to hear an application as an abuse of the Board's process.

During the reporting period the Board heard many applications for rescission of a certification order – several were allowed and several were dismissed. In Janzen v. Service Employees International Union, Local 336 and Prairie Care Developments Inc., [2007] Sask. L.R.B.R. 48, LRB File No. 004-07, the Board confirmed the long-standing requirements for the form of support evidence on rescission applications. In Chuey v. Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 4687 and Good Shepherd Villas. Inc., [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 322, LRB File No. 197-05, where the employer's inexperienced bargaining representative made impolitic statements to the union's representatives at the first bargaining session, the Board concluded that the facts did not support a conclusion that the employer had directly or indirectly influenced the making of the application such that the employees could not make an informed decision on a representation vote. In Jones and Memory v. Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union and Hill View Manor, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 404, LRB File No. 144-06, the Board stated that in circumstances where the applicants for rescission were the only members of the union's bargaining committee for a first collective agreement and neither they nor the employer had made any request of the other to commence bargaining, as part of its determination whether to grant the application for rescission the Board could consider the fact that the members of the bargaining unit had not had the opportunity to experience working life with union representation under a collective agreement.

During the reporting period the Board received and determined numerous applications alleging a breach of a trade union's duty of fair representation pursuant to s. 25.1 of The Trade Union Act. In E.A. v. National Automobile. Aerospace, Transportation and General Workers Union of Canada (CAW-Canada) and Hotel Saskatchewan, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 369, LRB File No. 076-04, and Hinks v. Construction and General Workers' Union, Local 180, [2007] Sask. L.R.B.R. 1, LRB File No. 067-05, the Board reiterated the key criterion that if the union reasonably and fairly investigates a member's complaint, and after a reasonably thoughtful assessment of the situation concludes that it will not progress a grievance, it is not in violation of the Act. and it is not for the Board to determine whether the union did everything possible to assist the employee or that it reached a correct conclusion in law of the merits of the grievance. In Datchko v. Deer Park Employees' Association, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 354, LRB File No. 262-03, the Board concluded that it was not illegitimate for small independent trade union with limited means to consider the cost of arbitration as part of its determination whether to pursue a grievance. In D.C.B. v. Saskatchewan Joint Board, Retail. Wholesale and Department Store Union, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 269, LRB

File No. 045-04, the Board dismissed the application where the complaining employee failed to contact the union until one year after his termination. The Board confirmed that it is not a necessary duty of the representative union to seek out grievances to file and that employees have a responsibility to bring their complaints to the attention of the union in a reasonably timely manner unless the employee is not reasonably able to do so. In Beatty v. Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union and Northlands College, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 440, LRB File No. 086-04, the Board found that the union had acted arbitrarily where it had advised the applicant that a grievance had been or would be filed and without explanation failed to do so. The Board ordered the union to investigate the merits of a grievance, advise the applicant of its determination whether or not to proceed and the reasons therefor, and in the event that its determination was not in the applicant's favour, to advise the applicant of the right to appeal under the union's constitution. In D.M. v. United Steelworkers of America, Local 5890 and IPSCO Inc., [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 492, LRB File No. 046-05, the Board adjourned the duty of fair representation application sine die in circumstances where a prior determination on disability and accommodation by the Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission was essential to the Board's analysis of the applicant's procedural complaints in his application to the Board.

Many applications alleging unfair labour practices under s. 11 of The Trade Union Act were heard and determined during the reporting period. In United Food and Commercial Workers, Local 1400 v. Wal-Mart Canada Corp., [2007] Sask. L.R.B.R. 75, LRB File No. 172-04, the Board made a preliminary determination that it had the jurisdiction to hear an application alleging that Wal-Mart committed an unfair labour practice by securing the termination of an employee of a third-party contractor for the alleged purposes of intimidating its own employees despite the fact that the terminated employee did not have an employment relationship with Wal-Mart. The application itself was dismissed.

The Board reviewed the criteria considered in whether to exercise its discretion to hear and grant an application for reconsideration of a decision of the Board in Winners Merchants International L.P. v. Saskatchewan Joint Board, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. 275, LRB File No. 225-05.

In Walmart Canada Corp. v. Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board and United Food and Commercial Workers, Local 1400, [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. c-15, the Saskatchewan Court of Queen's Bench dismissed an application by Wal-Mart for an order that the Board as then constituted be prohibited from hearing any applications in which Wal-Mart was the respondent on the alleged grounds that the Board was biased or that there was a reasonable apprehension of bias on the part of the Board. The Saskatchewan Court of Appeal dismissed Wal-Mart's appeal of that decision at [2006] Sask. L.R.B.R. c-25. The Supreme Court of Canada refused to grant Wal-Mart leave to appeal at [2007] S.C.C.A. No. 22.

In conjunction with its publisher, the Saskatchewan Legal Education Society Inc. (SKLESI), the Board continued the publication of its Reasons for Decision and any subsequent court decisions during the reporting year in the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board Reports (cited as Sask. L.R.B.R.). The Board wishes to thank SKLESI, its Executive Director and Staff for their considerable effort and continued cooperation in the publication of the Reports. The Reports are available by subscription through SKLESI, at court house libraries in some judicial centres and at the Law Library at the University of Saskatchewan. Reports of recent Board decisions are available on the Board's website at www.sasklabourrelationsboard. com. Many of the Board's Reasons for Decision are also available on QuickLaw.
